		FMA Act Agencies comprise all Departments of State, Departments of the Parliament and “prescribed Agencies” named in the FMA Regulations. These agencies are all able to receive appropriations in their own right. Also, note that all FMA Act Agencies are in the “General Government Sector”. [M] 38 agencies are material entities. Material entities comprise 99% of revenues, expenses, assets and liabilities. Note too, that all of the 18 Departments of State are “material in nature”. † 17 agencies also encompass bodies corporate formed under statute. [I] 17 agencies are interjurisdictional in nature, eg, involving the States or Territories in their governance structure or establishment. * 11 agencies can engage personnel under enabling legislation as well as under the Public Service Act 1999 . These include Defence, under the Defence Act 1903 , the Naval Defence Act 1910 and the Air Force Act 1923 . Σ 3 Executive Agencies have statutory functions. Δ AFSA handles money other than public money. ^ IP Australia encompasses some office holders, ie. for registering patents, trademarks and designs. 14/ 18 – Indicates number of prescribed Agencies of that type (e.g. Statutory Agencies) out of the total prescribed Agencies in the portfolio. # The Attorney-General’s portfolio includes the High Court of Australia, which is part of the Commonwealth, is an “agency” named in the annual Appropriation Acts and is in the “General Government Sector”. However, it is not an Agency under the FMA Act, due to its status under its enabling legislation, which also sets its employment framework.
